Mark Pennington joined John E. Osborn P.C. as Of Counsel in November 2007. He has practiced environmental law in New York City for over twenty years. He concentrates on hazardous waste remediation, brownfield redevelopment, compliance management, enforcement proceedings, business transactions, and open space preservation.

Prior to entering private practice, Mr. Pennington was a law clerk to U.S. District Judge Barbara Crabb in Madison, Wisconsin. He began his career in environmental law with the Washington D.C. office of Bryan Cave, where he developed an in-depth knowledge of hazardous waste law and regulation, representing trade associations and corporations in rulemaking, permitting, and compliance matters. Subsequently, he practiced in the New York office of Morgan Lewis, where he handled a broad array of projects, including cleanups before local, state and federal agencies; multi-party Superfund proceedings; proactive compliance counseling (solid and hazardous waste, clean air, clean water, community right-to-know); compliance audits; environmental management systems; permitting and enforcement proceedings; litigation of insurance recovery and tort cases; and due diligence and contract negotiation in business transactions. He has extensive experience assisting clients with building on contaminated property.

He has published and lectured on a broad range of environmental issues, including solid and hazardous waste management, environmental due diligence, financial assurance, insurance coverage, and lender liability.

Mr. Pennington is admitted to the Bar in the State of New York, and is an active member of the New York State Bar Association's Environmental Law Section, the New York City Bar, the American Bar Association's Section on Natural Resources, Energy and Environmental Law, the National Brownfield Association, the New York State Affordable Housing Association, and the Land Trust Alliance. Mr. Pennington received his Bachelor of Arts magna cum laude from Yale University and his law degree from New York University School of Law.
